Hello, everyone. The Middle East is being rattled again as hostilities erupt between Israel and Hezbollah. Lebanon is the battlefield and thousands of innocent civilians are in harm's way, having their lives turned upside down.

This special edition of the Radio HF Newsletter will provide you with links to web pages that will hopefully give you a better understanding of the players in the battle, the region itself, and how the world is dealing with the situation. I have included links to various on-line media outlets (radio, TV, newspapers, etc.), some with live streaming. Some sites have many links included. Some may be functional; others may not. Feel free to explore.

I am not taking any sides in this conflict. This is merely an attempt on my part to shed some light on the conflict. I hope you find this information helpful and informative. I am in position to evaluate the accuracy of the information on some of these sites. There will, no doubt, be obvious slants presented to one side or the other. Keep an open mind and keep in mind the sources and origins of the material you may see on some of these sites.

Over the years of publishing this Newsletter, I am generally in the habit of reviewing the "About Us" section on most websites. Of course, this information can sometimes be structured to appear as something that it really isn't. All this to say, simply, don't take all things at face value, but it is certainly interesting to explore, evaluate and compare.

Any comment you may have on any of the material included here is greatly appreciated.
